For thousands of years, people have been decorating their bodies with tattoos for a variety of reasons. The world of body art ranges from small, intricate tattoos to large-scale paintings. To this day, people use this art to express themselves, their personality or a very special passion. There are already countless people who have had the unique MEISSEN decorations immortalized on their skin, expressing their love for the Crossed Swords. Adial Alves de Oliveira Neto, guest tattoo artist from Brazil at the Dresden Tattoo Studio Stichcode, will immortalize the MEISSEN passion of our visitors on their skin and tattoo the MEISSEN swords free of charge for all those interested. Adial's detailed artistic expression and realism are perfectly suited to bringing the manufactory's intricate decorations to life on the skin. The studio in the Kugelhaus was the first in the city of Dresden and works with artists from all over the world.

As a special highlight on the opening day, Friday 26 April at 1.30 p.m., André Hardt from Radio Dresden and Managing Director Dr. Tillmann Blaschke will have the famous Meissen swords tattooed live on site. André Hardt, known for his format "André und die Morgenmädels", has been working for the radio station for 15 years and is redeeming a bet from his quiz show "Kaffee-frage" with the tattoo.
